Abstract—The title of this thesis is “An Analysis of Contractions Used in Maleficent Movie”. “Maleficent” movie was directed by Robert Stromberg based on the originally story Disney’s Sleeping Beauty La Belle au bois dormant by Charles Perrault. The background of this research, there are many contractions in “Maleficent” movie. This is good to learn and to use them (contractions) in daily life and maybe they are not found in other movies. The contraction spoken by movie players is sometimes very difficult to understand. The researcher choose this movie because this movie is so interest and inspire. The problem of this research is what contractions are used by the author in the movie “Maleficent” and how are contractions used by the author in the movie “Maleficent”. The purpose of this research is to find out contractions used by the author in the movie “Maleficent” and to explain contractions used by the author in the movie “Maleficent”. To achieve that purpose, the researcher conducted the qualitative research by library research. There are many contractions used by the author which can be classified into eight categories. The most dominant contraction is contracted pronoun. The second is verb contractions. The third are contracting not and ambiguous contraction. The fourth are negative contractions and contraction in tag question. The fifth are contracted noun and beware homophones.

I. INTRODUCTION

English is one of subjects which is taught by the teacher as one of school’s curriculum in Indonesia. It is learned begin from the kindergarten up to university level. Some students like it and some others do not. This depends on how the teacher teaches and motivates them. If a teacher can motivate his students certainly they will enjoy the English class. Motivation can encourage the spirit of students. It will bring a good effect for the students to learn English. It makes the students easily comprehend English. Thus, teachers’ motivation bring a good effect to the students. There are many ways to learn English. It is not only by reading a book or making conversation directly by using English but we can also learn English by watching movie. Watching the movie is also a media of language learning that is quite powerful and interesting, because with watching movies we can enjoy the artwork itself. Films create an enthusiasm for learning matched only by the Internet, it can easily be integrated with film based assignments. Even when they are on older films, these invariably reflect a higher level of application than assignments based on more conventional readers and textbooks. When film assignments are performative exercises, again students’ enthusiasm can be astonishing, especially if the film is popular and reasonably current David (2018). Learning English with movies gives you the things that you don’t get in the class.

Movies also known as films which have a type of visual communication which use moving pictures and sound to tell stories or give information to the people. It is produced by recording photographic images with cameras, or by creating images using animation techniques or visual effect. The process of film making developed into an art form and industry. Films are cultural artifacts created by specific cultures, which reflect those cultures, and affect them. For example, In “Maleficent” movie, there are many contractions spoken by movie players, that are very good for us to use as everyday language, but perhaps this contraction is not found in other movie or films. For example “She’s alone”, the contraction “She’s” can be use everyday because it is very short and does not waste time in speaking. The example of “I’m tired”, the contraction “ I’m” was very easy to say in every day speaking.

Film is considered to be an important art form, a source of popular entertainment and a powerful method for educating. The visual elements of cinema give motion pictures are a universal power of communication. Some films have become popular worldwide attractions by using dubbing or subtitles that translate the dialogue into the language of the viewer. Movies also help people to learn about something or search information. This time, some people prefer to watch western movies or foreign movies, because the quality of good movie and always make the audience curious, and also can improve the pronunciation in English. Usually, among teenagers who prefer western movies. The language is used in western movies or foreign films can also affect one’s mastery in English. English is very important in life currently Arnhem (1997).

In this movie, almost every player used contractions in their pronunciation, and almost all of contractions uttered by the player were very difficult for the audience to understand their meaning and purpose. The examples can be seen as follows: "we've met only once", the word “we’ve” in that sentence is not understood because the pronunciation is very similar to "wave". "That's a lovely gift" the word “That’s” is not understood because the pronunciation similar to “Dads”. So, it is very difficult to differentiate them.

Movies as the primary tool for teaching certain performance skills and for conveying some types of factual data, for example movie based on true story. When a person is often watching western movies, it would be a good mastery of the English language. In this study, the method to be used in the movie examined the influence of the west against the mastery of the English is quantitative methods. With this method, it is expected of everyone, especially the students can easily master the English with western movies or foreign. For example, to understand about pronunciation, vocabulary, etc. In the other hand, understanding in English will easily conveyed. Through the movies, you can hear how a word pronounced by native speakers. This movie is not for the language learners but for the native speakers, you can use to hear the sentences English spoken by native speakers, speed, accent and even the context.

Definition of Contraction We use contractions (I'm, we're) in everyday speech and informal writing. Contractions, which are sometimes called 'short forms’, commonly combine a pronoun or noun and a verb, or a verb and not, in a shorter form. Contractions are usually not appropriate in formal writing. When we make a contraction, we commonly put an apostrophe in place of a missing letter. Contractions are formed with auxiliary verbs, and also with be and sometimes have when these are not auxiliary verbs. The short form 's (is/has) can be written after nouns, question words, here and now as well as pronouns and unstressed there. The short forms 'll, 'd and 're are commonly written after pronouns and unstressed there, but in other cases we more often write the full forms (especially in British English), even if the words would be contracted in pronunciation. Contractions are not usually written with double subjects (Swan, 1995).

- John and I have decided to split up. (not john and I’ve decided…) The apostrophe (’) goes in the same place as the letters that we leave out: has not = hasn’t (not ha‘nt). But note that shan’t (= shall not) and won’t (= will not) only have one apostrophe each. Forms like I’ve, don’t are called ‘contractions’. There are two kinds: Noun/Pronoun/etc+ (auxiliary) Verb (Auxiliary) verb = not I’m tired They aren't ready. Do you know when you’ll arrive? You won’t be late, will you? I’ve no idea My father’s not very well. She’d like to talk to you. I haven’t seen him for ages. Here’s our bus. Can’t you swim? Based on the sentence above, we can see differences about noun/pronoun/etc + (auxiliary) verb and (auxiliary) verb = not.

Types of Contraction:

A. Contracted Nouns and Pronouns

In casual conversation, contractions involving nouns are fairly common ("My dad’ll be home soon"). In writing, however, they're much rarer than contractions with pronouns such as I'll, he'd, and she's. You can contract proper nouns to mean is or has, such as in "Shelly's coming with us," or "Jeff's bought a new computer." Watch out for the homonyms who's and whose; the contraction is "who is" or "who has," and the whole word is possessive, as in "Whose car is that?" And of course, if you're visiting the South, you'll likely hear the colloquial "y'all" for "you all."

B. Negative Contractions and Verb Contractions

Contractions are often made with auxiliary, or helping, verbs, such as to be, do, have, and can. We can say "it isn't raining" or "it's not raining." But we cannot say "it isn't raining." In negative clauses, we often have a choice between negative contractions like not (n't) and contracting the pronoun and verb (it's). But we can't do both.

C. Contracting 'Not'

The contracted form of not (n't) can be attached to finite forms of the helping verbs be, do, and have. However, amn't (mainly Scottish and Irish) is extremely rare, unlike the disparaged ain't. The n't form can also be attached to most of the modal auxiliaries such as can't, couldn't, mustn't, shouldn't, won't, and wouldn't. Yet, you will not hear many Americans saying mayn't or shan't; even those contractions are too formal.

D. Contractions in Tag Questions

A tag question is a short question added to the end of a declarative sentence, usually to make sure that something has been done or understood. For example, "It's a tag question, isn’t it?". Because of their colloquial nature, negative tags are commonly contracted: didn't we? haven’t you? aren’t they? This is much less formal than did not we? or did we not?.

E. Ambiguous Contractions

Most contractions ending in ’d and ’s are ambiguous. The 'd can represent either had or would; ’s can represent either has or is. All the same, the meaning of these contractions is usually clear from the context. For instance, "Sam's finished his term paper" implies completion in the past, Sam has finished while "Sam's dead" is in the present tense, meaning Sam is.

F. Beware Homophones
For some of these, it's a very common mistake to use a contraction when you really need to use a similar word. A perfect example is they're and their, which are homophones. To determine whether the contraction is appropriate, ask yourself if it makes sense without the contraction: Does they are make sense? If not, then, you should probably be using the adjective their. Of course, if you're speaking about a place, then there is the correct word. Another problem comes up with its and it's. Use the same test. If you mean "it is," then use the contraction. If you want the pronoun (which takes the place of a noun), then use its. Isn't English fun? We rely on contractions all the time in normal conversation. Some people are under the impression that contractions should never appear in writing, but this belief is mistaken. The use of contractions is directly related to tone. In informal writing (from text messages and blogs to memos and personal essays), we often rely on contractions to maintain a colloquial tone. In more formal writing assignments (such as academic reports or term papers), avoiding contractions is a way of establishing a more serious tone.

You probably use contractions when you speak to your friends and family members every day; however, it is important to note that contractions are often considered inappropriate in formal writing. Professors, employers, and other professionals like to see that you have taken your time on a document, and using contractions is sometimes seen as a shortcut. To be safe, never use contractions when writing for a class or when writing a professional document, such as a personal statement or cover letter.

1) Alternative Contractions: Some negative expression can have two possible contractions. For she had not we can say she’d not or she hadn’t; for he will not we can say he’ll not or he won’t. The two negative forms of be (e.g. she isn’t and she’s not) are both common; with other verbs, forms with n’t (e.g. she had’t) are more common in most cases in standard southern British English and in American English. (forms with not – e.g. she’d not – tend to be more common in Northern and Scottish English). Double contractions are not normally written: she’sn’t is impossible (Swan, 1995).

2) Stress: Contractions in the first group (noun/pronoun/question word + auxiliary verb) are never stressed. When an auxiliary verb is stressed (for example at the end of a clause), a contraction is not possible. Compare:

- I’m late
- Yes, you are. ((not Yes, you’re)
- I’ve forgotten.
- yes, you have. (not Yes, you’ve).

However, negative contractions can be stressed, and we can use the at the ends of clauses.

- They really aren’t.
- No, I haven’t.26

3) Definition of the Movie: According to Kindem, movies are both art and commerce, creative expressions of national or cultural interest and preoccupations and part of a global entertainment market. Movie is a sequence of photographs projected onto a screen with sufficient rapidity as to create the illusion of motion and continuity (Kindem, 2000:1). The American Heritage Dictionary of English language (1996:4756). stated that “movie is a sequence of photograph projected onto screen with sufficient rapidly as to create the illusion of motion and continuity.

A movie or motion picture is the only new visual art form created in the 300 years. It is a complex, exclusive art, difficult to define, but the element of the movies are instantaneous and universal. A movie camera or video camera takes pictures very quickly, usually at 25 pictures every second. When a movie projector, a computer, or a television shows the picture at that rate, it looks like thing shown in the set of picyures is really moving. Sound is either recorded at the same time, or added later. The sounds in the movie usually include the sounds of people talking, music, and sound effect.

In other words movie is also called a film or motion picture, is a series of still or moving images. It is produced by recording photographic images with cameras, or by creating images using animation techniques or visual effect. Film is considered to be an important art form, a source of popular entertainment and a powerful method for educating or indoctrinating citizens. Some films have become popular worldwide attractions by using subtitles that dialogue into the language of the viewer (Clive and Gary (1997). Certainly television can be more that one among many factors in influencing behaviors and attitudes. However, there is consistently a significant relationship between the violence rating of four favourite programs and the five measure of deviance. Finally, movie or film is a visual communication that delivering messages to the audience through media story that be displayed in theaters and television to entertain people (Clive, 2004).

4) Structural Definition: Literary research ought to oppose the interpretation and analysis of the literary work. An approach which opposed to belles-lettiers is referred to an objective approach. Structural analysis is all important shares in grabbing meaning in literary work set self. Literary works have a system consisted of the interacted element. To find out the bearing usher the element in that belles-lettiers is very precise if the observation of art text begins with the structural approach. Element of form pleasure which form gives are to be regarded as essential (Hudson, 1916:10).

Structural analysis can be done by identifying, studying and describing the function and relation of Intrinsic element:

Firsly Theme is the subject of a talk, a piece of writing or a person’s thoughts a topic (Hornby, 1995:1237). Choosing an interesting theme is a difficult thing in making film or movie.
Secondly Plot is all of the series of the event or scene from the start until to the end of the movie. Plot is the story of connected events running through a play.

Thirdly Character is a person in a narrative or drama. Character is divided in two parts; the major characters and minor characters. The major characters are most important figures. Meanwhile, minor characters are figures that the properties and behavior characterizations to support the main character.

Fourth Setting is the place the story happened or created (Hornby, 1995). In choosing the setting, the directors have to make some consideration because it also support the success of the story.

Fifth Point of view show the position from which the story is told, more specifically who tells it. It can be understood through the dialogue of the characters.

Sixth The viewers have to understand the message in a story they watched. The message in a movie or film is objective.

Extrinsic element is also known as extrinsic factors influence the literary works. It is usually becomes a “Causal” explanation for some description, analysis and evaluation of a literary work. The literary elements can be found outside the literary works. They was including background of creating, history, author’s bibliography, etc. Outside of intrinsic element movie there are : Images, time, its duration of the film, Motion pictures, Sound is not essential to a motion picture however sound is so common in film that is included as an essential element, lighting, it’s using photographic instruments we record light. Composition is the use of the visual elements and principles to create a frame that is aesthetically interesting, attention holding, and consistent with overall continuity.

The genres of the movieare the term for any category of literature or other forms of arts or entertainment, e.g. Movie, audio or visual, based on some set or stylistic criteria. Genres of the movie are as follow.

Action, action movie is a genre where in physical action takes precedence in the storytelling. The movie will often have continuous motion and action including physical stunts, chases, fights, battles, and races. The story usually revolves around the hero that has a goal, but is facing incredible odds to obtain it (Amin, 2013:18).

Animation, one in which puppets or drawing appear move. That is a motion picture consisting of a sequence of drawings, each slightly different, so that when filmed and run through a projector the figures seem to move (Amin, 2013).

Adventure, An adventure story is about a protagonist who journeys to epic or distant places to accomplish something. The protagonist has a mission and faces obstacles to get to his destination. The stories are filled with risks, suspenseful scenes, and thrilling moments (Indriyani, 2012:22).

Comedy, Comedy is a story that tells about a series of funny or comical events, intended to make the audience laugh. Movies belonging to this category have a gray scale axis, with a large standard deviation. This indicate a uniform distribution of light (Indriyani, 2012:22).

Crime and Gangster Films, such films trace the lives of fictional and true criminals, gangs or mobsters.

Drama film, movie genre that depends mostly on in depth development of realistic characters dealing with emotional themes. Drama is one of the broadest movie genres and includes subgenres such as romantic drama, sport films, period drama and courtroom drama.

Romance Movie, romantic love story recorded in visual media for broadcast in theaters and on television that focus on passion, emotion, and the affectionate romantic involvement of the main characters and the journey that their genuinely strong, true and pure romantic love takes the through dating, courtship or marriage (Indriyani, 2012:22).

Epics/ Historical films, an epic involves elements like war, romance and adventure. The sets are created carefully to reflect the time period. i) Horror,movie pf this type have a mean gray-scale value towards the dark end of the axis, and have low standard deviation. This is because of the frequent use of dark tones and dim lights by the director (Indriyani, 2012:22).

Musicals/ dance films, these are entertaining films that are based on full scale scores or song and dance.

War films, these are very true to real life and often depict the waste of war. Attention is given to acts of heroism, the human spirit, psychological damage to soldiers and the pain of families waiting at home.

Western this genre is central to American culture and to its films industry. They speak of days of expansion and the trials with Native Indians. The plots and characters are very distinctive.

Thrillers , they differ from horror because use are more provocative than scary.

Sci-Fi, like futuristic scene, movie like Star Wars will intrigue you. They can be classified as adventure films too.

II. METHOD

Research Design In conducting the data, the researcher used qualitative method. Qualitative methodology is a kind of research where its inventions are not found through statistical procedure. Library research is defined as research which is conducted in library with the source. Library research is activity to investigate the ones which is based on empirical data stated of earlier expert.

In conducting the research, the researcher made an overview by watching the movie, reading and quoted the material from some books, and used some references from various resources to complete information to support the research.

A. Technique of Analyzing Data

the data was analyzed descriptively by using technique used by Miles, Huberman and Saldana (2014) which consist of three steps: (1) data condensation, (2) data display, and (3) conclusion drawing and verification. The three steps of data analysis technique based on Miles, Huberman and Saldana’s theory (2014) illustrated as follow:

III. RESULT AND DISCUSSION

The data analysis result is taken from analyzing process through data concerning the contractions found in the “Maleficent” movie.

The researcher choose the contraction word that is suitable for speaking daily life and the researcher choose different contractions consist of types the contractions.

A. Data Analysis of Contraction

1) Contracted Nouns and Pronouns: There are several contractions that researcher found in the type of contracted nouns and pronouns in this movie. The contraction have in the sentence the players say in the movie, the contractions were listed below:

Contracted Nouns Contracted Pronouns

06. Maleficent’s coming.
015. My dad’ll replace it.
02. I’m sorry.
04. I hope there’s not another war.
08. Someday, you know, I’ll live there.
09. We’ll see each other again.
010. What's wrong?
013. Now, there’ll be no questions asked.
017. Then you’ll be afraid.
021. It’ll be something great.
027. Fine. Next time I’ll turn you.

In code 02, this sentence is the type of contracted pronoun because I is a pronoun, and I am abbreviated become I’m. In normal sentence become “I am sorry”, because I’m become I am. This sentence is a statement of apologize sentence. In code 04, the sentence is the type of contracted pronoun, and can also be classified of negative contraction because the word not in the sentence is not abbreviated become n’t and become there isn’t. In normal sentence become “I hope there is not another war”, the word there’s become there is. This statement forms as a positive sentence. In code 08, 09, 017, 021 and 027, the sentences are the type of contracted pronoun because pronoun + will, but will were abbreviated become ’ll. In normal sentence of code 08 become “Someday, you know, I will live there”, the word I’ll become I will. In normal sentence of code 09 become “we will see each other again”, the word we’ll become we will. In normal sentence of code 017 become “Then you will be afraid” the word you’ll become you will. In normal sentence of code 021 become “It will be something great”, the word it’ll become it will. In normal sentence of code 027 become “Fine, next time I will turn you” the word I’ll become I will.

In code 08, 09, 017, 021 and 027 they are have the same sentences, the sentences are example of forms hope forward sentences, as something is expected to happen in the future without any obstacles to the absence of the desire. In code 010, classified to the type of contracted pronoun because what is a pronoun, where what is abbreviated to what’s. In normal sentence become “what is wrong?”, the word what’s become what is. This sentence is a question sentence. In code 013, this sentence is the type of contracted pronoun also, because There is a pronoun. In normal sentences become “Now, there will be no questions asked”, the word there’ll become there will. This sentence is statement of affirmative sentence. In code 06 and 015, the sentences are the type of contracted noun because Maleficent and my dad are nouns. In normal sentence of code 06 is “Maleficent is coming”, Maleficent’s become Maleficent is. In normal sentence of code 015 is “My dad will replace it”, my dad’ll become My dad will. The sentences are forms of affirmative sentence, just to tells information to the audience or inform any important information to the audience.

2) Negative Contractions and Verb Contractions: The researcher found several contractions of the type of negative contractions and verb contractions found in this movie, there are as follows:

Negative Contractions Verb Contractions
01. I love your cap! No. No. don’t do it!
016. The wall can’t be burned.
029. I can’t do this without you, Diaval.
014. We’re starting again.
019. You’ve been watching over me.
024. I barely know her. We’ve only met once.
028. I’ve always known you were close by how?
031. We’re running out of time! Go, now!

In code 01, this sentence is the type of negative contraction because negative contraction often made with auxiliary or helping verb such do, have and can, so don’t is a negative contraction because not was abbreviated with do and became don’t. In normal sentence become “I love your cap! No. No, do not do it!”, don’t become do not. This sentence is examples of command sentence. In code 016 and 029, the sentences are the type of negative contraction also, because not was abbreviated with can and became can’t. In normal sentence of code 016 is “The wall can not be burned” and normal sentence of code 029 is “I can not do this without you, Diaval”, can’t become can not. The sentences are example of statement sentence, just for give information to audience.

In code 014 and 031, the sentences are the type of verb contraction because pronoun + verb, but verb were abbreviated. Verb contraction is almost the same as contracted noun. In normal sentence of code 031 is “We were running out of time! Go, now!” and normal sentence of code 014 is “we were starting again”, we’re become were. The sentences of code 014 is a statement of affirmative sentence.
